IT'S TIME TO SHOP FOR YOUR BATHING SUIT!

If you've been by the pool this fall you probably noticed the commotion inside the fence. The pool is undergoing a significant repair and refurbishment project! Work began early in October and continued through December. Tile and coping were replaced, filtration repairs were made, pool lining was removed, wall and floor repairs were made and new tile lane lines were installed. A perimeter of concrete decking was removed to eliminate uneven walk ways and improve drainage. The pool was then refilled for the winter to prevent damage from ground water pressure. Once the weather warms, the concrete decking will be re-poured and the pool will receive a new aggregate surface just before being filled for the summer. With the majority of work already complete, the Pool Commission is confident the pool will open Memorial Day weekend as usual.

The WIBIT inflatables were a big hit with all ages in 2012, though some chose to enjoy them from the sidelines. As one spectator said, "it's like watching WIPEOUT at Nor-Gwyn Pool." The obstacle course and the two deep water attractions will return again this year, giving parents another opportunity to show their kids that they still have what it takes!

A second Pooch Plunge was held this fall. 160 dogs and their humans turned out, many of them were repeat visitors doubling attendance from 2011. This event brings the unbridled happiness of canines to the facility. Even those not so fond of water enjoy the exercise and stimulation of so many dogs in one place. A tired dog is a happy dog! Pet food as well as cash donations were collected for both the SPCA and Operation AVA animal rescue.

The Pool Commission looks forward to sharing the summer with you again this year.
You can almost smell that sunscreen!

Stormwater Pollution: Everyone's Problem

Stormwater pollution is a problem we should all think about because we all contribute to it, we are all affected by it, and we can all be part of the solution. Stormwater running off the land carries many pollutants into local streams, either directly or through storm sewer systems. We use those streams, along with wells, for our drinking water. Due to development, less rain water is making its way underground to replenish our wells and more is rushing downstream. The more polluted our water resources become, the more difficult and expensive it is for water companies to purify it for drinking. That cost is passed on to us when we pay our water bills. Stormwater pollution also negatively impacts wildlife, recreation, stream banks and storm sewer systems. It can lead to increased flooding, fish becoming inedible, the spread of pathogens and other risks to human health. It is the responsibility of everyone to protect our streams from stormwater pollution. There are small actions each of us can take to reduce the pollutants stormwater picks up as it runs off the land. There are also ways to manage stormwater so less of it runs off our properties in the first place. Whether you manage hundreds of acres or own a small town lot, you can do a great deal to improve the quality of the water that recharges local wells and waterways.

Reduce the Pollutants

Stormwater pollution can be litter, chemicals, organics (leaves, grass clippings, etc.), or sediment. See the table to the right for examples of each. By disposing of trash, yard waste and household chemicals properly, using fertilizer sparingly, and picking up after our pets, we can greatly reduce the pollution on our land that stormwater can pick up. Washing a car outside can allow soap and pollutants to enter storm drains, and thus, streams. We can prevent this by washing our cars at a car wash, where the water is recycled, and washing other things indoors at a sink. Stormwater easily erodes soil from bare earth, causing dirtier waterways. To protect our streams, and our topsoil, we can plant more native vegetation on our properties, keep grass tall enough to slow down water (three inches or higher), and install silt fences during any earth disturbance activities.

Reduce the Runoff

In the past, stormwater management emphasized removing water quickly from land to prevent flooding, but that sent large volumes of water rushing into local streams. This quickly eroded stream banks, muddying the water in our streams and changing the shape of the waterways. Fast-moving stormwater picks up more pollution from our lawns, farms and roads, turning creeks and aquatic habitats into open storm sewers. The key to proper stormwater management is slowing the rate of this runoff. This allows enough time

TYPES	EXAMPLES
Litter	cigarette butts, cans, tires, plastics
Chemicals	soaps, oil, fertilizers, pesticides, car fluids
Organics	grass, yard waste, pet waste, compost leaky septic systems
Sediment	soil from bare earth, eroded stream banks construction sites for rainwater to sink into the ground rather than running off into storm drains. Installing a rain barrel on your downspout is an easy way to keep rain on your property. These containers collect and store rain water to be used for watering plants, cleaning yard equipment, or topping off a swimming pool. If collected in a rain barrel, stormwater can be released slowly, giving it time to seep into the soil. Rain barrels save money on household water use, provide plants with soft water (free of chlorine, lime or calcium), conserve water for use during drought, and can be designed to fit in nicely with your house and landscaping. A rain garden is a great way to reduce runoff and add beautiful native plants to your property. Rain gardens are graded slightly to collect several inches of stormwater, allowing time for the water to be absorbed by the soil or used by the plants. Both of these natural processes filter the water, and prevent it from becoming polluted stormwater runoff. Rain gardens recharge our groundwater resources and attract butterflies, beneficial insects and other wildlife. By using rain gardens and other stormwater management techniques at home, we can have a huge cumulative effect on the quality and quantity of our drinking water. ❀

8/12-8/16

Monday-Friday

Cost: $169

9am-3pm

Brought to you by the Creative Theatre team, our version of "Alice in Wonderland" is based loosely on the Lewis Carroll stories. Alice finds herself falling down a rabbit hole and from there tries desperately to get back home. In our production, we have multiple Alices (because it is wonderland Alice changes shape constantly), plenty of mad tea party guests (the hatter, the hare, doormouse, etc.) and of course her royal highness the Queen of Hearts. This is not based on the movie, and there are plenty of cool parts for girls and boys alike! But like the Creative Theatre programs, the students add their own voice to this piece. Everyone in wonderland is quite mad, and quite funny!

Electronics Recycling

Electronic discards include computers, monitors, televisions, audio equipment, printers, and other electronic devices. Consumer electronic products are characterized by rapidly evolving technology and a relatively short product life. Advances in technology for all electronic equipment, particularly cell phones, soon renders them obsolete. The average lifespan of a computer is about three to four years. Items that break are often not repaired due to the relatively low price of new equipment. When the equipment breaks or becomes obsolete, it is often discarded into the waste stream. Given the sheer volume of obsolete electronics and the hazardous materials they may contain, consumers and generators are encouraged to seek environmentally safe recycling centers for safe disposal of these items. For more information on the program, please contact Montgomery County. 🌱
